POLITICAL NETWORK FOR VALUES

How far can we get?

The Political Network for Values and its allied organizations are gathering political representatives from Europe, the Americas and other regions of the world in its 3rd Transatlantic Summit, which is held in the Congress of the Republic of Colombia. The gradual establishment of relativism in all areas of life has brought about a liquid society devoid of permanent reference points, and a crisis of civilization. This Summit is aimed at providing a response at this crucial moment in history.

Affirming solid principles on which to build the future is urgent in the face of an escalating global offensive – gender ideology, anti-natalism, euthanasia, corruption, etc. – and the growing political polarization between the New Global Order and populism. The Summit provides a forum to share strategies, best practices and lines of action for strengthening the family, marriage, the defense of life and human dignity and freedom of conscience and religion, always with profound integrity in the management of public resources.
